ORDER :-

The petitioner applied for and obained a loan of Rs.500/- (Rupees five hundred) in order to construct stone vaddu (embankment) in his field. He did not construct the embankment according to the terms of the orde of the Officer who sanctioned the loan. He constructed a mud embankment instead of a stone embankment, and he spent only about Rs.300 according to his own admission. In the circumstances no one but himself is to blame for the fact that the embankment was washed away. According to the rules the whole amount of the loan could have be summarily recovered, but as an act of grace only a portion of the loan was recovered, and a revised loan order was issued for the balance of the loan amoun due. The Government see no reason for the grant of any further concession to the petitioner.
